Forest Owners Field Day

INFORMATION AND REGISTRATION

June 12, 2010

9:00 a.m.–4:30 p.m.

Athol, Idaho

(15 miles north of Coeur d'Alene)

Your Forest, Your Aquifer

University of Idaho
Extension

WASHINGTON STATE UNIVERSITY
 EXTENSION

Whether you own a few acres or a large tract of land, this educational event is for you! You will learn how to plan and implement sound forest management practices. Join the more than 7,000 people who have already attended events across Idaho and Washington.

Forests play a critical role in water quality and quantity. This year's joint Idaho–Washington Forest Owners Field Day will have a special focus on practices that maintain or add to the health of the Spokane Valley–Rathdrum Prairie Aquifer.

Tell a friend! If you think forests are vital to the quality of life in the Inland Northwest, please pass this information along to your neighbor! This flyer is also available at <http://ext.wsu.edu/forestry/>.
